In Memory of Clark Carter

1841 - 1920

The Lawrence City Mission is one of the oldest institutions in the city, its activities dating back almost to the time of our community becoming large enough to be called a city. It is an organization in which the citizens may feel a just pride, for in all these years it has stood forth as an embodiment of the charitable instincts of the good people of Lawrence. Without bias of race or creed, it has sought to relieve distress. To properly distribute the funds provided by the churches, the corporations, and by charitable citizens; to discriminate only between the worthy and the unworthy; to dismiss those who seek charity as an end rather than a means, but to extend genuine help to those among us who were overtaken by misfortune and needed the helping hand called for a man of rare judgment, sympathy and tact. Such a man was Clark Carter. He wisely safeguarded the distribution of the Mission's funds, yet where need existed he quietly, as becomes real charity, extended the relief within his power, and yet in such a way as not to impair the recipient's self-respect.

Well equipped with a liberal education, and after twenty years of the ministry, fifteen of which was with the South Congregational Church at Lawrence, he became City Missionary in 1888, and thereafter for a full thirty-two years he went among us as our almoner.

Yet his field of labor was larger than the limits of our city; he was interested and actively engaged in many movements which tended to remove the causes of poverty, and lighten the burden of human misery.

His stewardship is ended. This tribute we spread upon our records and transmit to his family in appreciation of the loyal and devoted service of a good man.

WALTER E. PARKER,
CHAS. H. LITTLEFIELD.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

To the Officers and Members of the Lawrence City Mission:—

The sixty-first year of the life of the City Mission marks the end of another period. In its many years of existence with the exception of an interval of two years, three devoted and honored men have carried on the work of ministering to the needy of the city and of contributing their energies toward the strengthening of community life. In December, our beloved secretary, Rev. Clark Carter, having completed nearly 32 years of service, was obliged to give up his work at the office, although he kept in active personal touch with it until within a few days of his death in May. To his foresight and well-balanced judgment should be credited the beginnings of many of the institutions in the city which are now serving the sick and the dependent, such as the City Hospital, the District Nursing Service, the Baby Welfare Work and the Care of the Tubercular. Mr. Carter was also actively interested in passing Massachusetts Child Labor Laws, Workingmen's Compensation Act and our Local Housing Laws.

In May arrangements were made for the interchange of property with the Grace Episcopal Church, which necessitated the remodelling of our building. We have emerged from the dust and confusion with clean, fresh quarters, much better adapted to our needs and affording room in the building for other Social Service Agencies.

The Red Cross, Anti-Tuberculosis League, Girl Scouts and Lawrence Americanization Office have already established their offices here.

In July we added a stenographer to our force and made arrangements with the Mass. S. P. C. C. for the half-time service of one of their trained workers to take care of the protective work in our district. This worker has been a most valuable addition to the staff and we have established a closer relationship with the Boston office and its arrangements for physical and mental examinations. Sixty-eight children have been reported to us and either removed from unsuitable surroundings or supervised until the surroundings were made suitable. One small boy of 8, having been sent to Danvers and pronounced not insane was about to be committed to a Correctional School for stealing and general badness. A kind and sympathetic study of the child at the Judge Baker Foundation, which meant a physical examination by a doctor, a mental examination by a psychiatrist and a social diagnosis (interviews with the boy and his father) by a social worker, revealed the fact that the home environment was apparently responsible. The boy was placed in a boarding home and never gave any trouble—was regular at school and stood well in his classes. He had good meals at regular times and the care of a motherly woman instead of a questionable house-keeper.

We have supervised 48 children in foster homes, continuing our policy of receiving only the children for whose board we would be completely reimbursed with the exception of two little girls with chorea for whom we provided six weeks' board in a country home. On account of illness, death and non-employment, the burden at times comes upon us so that this year shows $6,877.24 paid and $6,290.82 received for board of children. The difference will in part be collected.

After a lapse of five years we again went through the schools to discover the children who were in need of glasses. All the oculists in the city have cooperated in giving of their time and skill. In this year of steady employment more parents have been able to pay for the glasses but it has required the same amount of persuasion to have them acknowledge the necessity.

Through our efforts 192 children were examined and 70 children have secured glasses. Fifty of these were given free examination but paid for their glasses, some through the City Mission at fifty cents a week, the rest were provided by the City Mission. The Junior Red Cross contributed $77.00 toward this amount.

Many of the children examined but not provided with glasses showed a chance for improvement under special attention, operation, etc., and require further following up.

The Red Cross is now contributing a nurse to aid in the physical examination of the school children. This will bring to light many special cases which will need attention, the anaemic and physically unfit. Some may need to be placed in carefully selected and supervised country homes; others may need special extra diet in their own homes under the watchful eye of a nutrition worker who weighs and measures the children at stated intervals and teaches the mother.

We shall need special funds to see that these children have this necessary building up.

Under the inspiration of Mrs. George W. Woodman, the D. A. R. have each year contributed to our children's work and this year they made a special effort, giving us $705.84 in memory of Mrs. Woodman.

When we consider our work with families it is most interesting to note that in this year of regular employment and prohibition we have had fewer applicants for relief than ever before. The number of families under supervision has not diminished. In fact, we have devoted more time to a certain group of cases in an effort to raise them to the point of efficiency. We had something hopeful to work upon, a steady income. After years of discouragement and irregular income it is a long step to self respect and a comfortable, well regulated home.

In several cases our visitors are making some headway. Mr. C—— had 18 jobs in 12 months, was constantly in debt and his home destitute. With the coming of prohibition and the removal of temptation, the children are fed, shod and clothed, new furniture has been bought and the atmosphere of the home is changed.

Our Society a few years ago went on record as favoring prohibition, the following figures justify our position:

In Lawrence, the total arrests for drunkenness the first six months of 1919 were 1014 and for the second six months after prohibition there were 654. There has been a corresponding decrease throughout the State and the population of the State Farm, whose inmates are largely sentenced for drunkenness has been reduced from 1410 in 1916 to 240 in 1920. In our own court there were 40 arrests for neglect of family during the first six months of 1919 and but 22 the last six months. The State reports on neglected children for July and August show in no instance over one-third the 1916 figures.

The City is making a regular weekly allowance to many fatherless families. Unfortunately the aid given is not sufficient to provide for emergencies or special needs. Here our organization must help out if we cling to our objective, the restoration into trained independent citizenship of the handicapped and dependent.

The Community Council has established a Central Registration Bureau where all social agencies may register identifying information on a case so that if a family is already known to an agency and comes to the attention of another by registering, the fact will be discovered before any action is taken, thus the family is often saved from needless interference and conflicting advice and the waste of money and resources of the Community is avoided as well as waste of time and human effort.

We have been dealing with society's weaker members, its unprivileged and its untrained. The intimate knowledge of these families leads us back to factors and causes in human insufficiency and then on to our responsibility for Community action and we hesitate, for as Dr. Crothers says, "In all generations there have been persons who did their duty according to their lights. But in these days it happens that a new set of lights has been turned on suddenly and we all see more duties than we had bargained for."

Many have been the gifts of money and service to the Mission and to these contributors we extend our hearty thanks.

MYRA H. CHURCH, Secretary.
